GREENE AGREES TO BUILD ROAD

State Highway Commissioner Says First Ulster County Road Will Be Saugerties-Palenville Road—So Writes Supervisor Fratscher.

The following letter received by Supervisor Fratscher of Saugerties is of much interest, and indicates that the Saugerties-Palenville road will be the first to be constructed in Ulster county by the present state highway commissioner:

State of New York
Commission of Highways
Albany, June 30, 1919.

John D. Fratscher,
Saugerties, N. Y.

My Dear Sir:
I have your letter of June 28th. The Saugerties-Palenville road is first on the order of construction of county highways in Ulster county. At the present time the department is devoting its energies to finishing up the "broken down" war contracts which are 181 in number. The division offices have been instructed to work up final estimates on these contracts which have been terminated in accordance with chapter 489, laws 1919, the so-called Knight bill. We are doing this to release the moneys to contractors so that we can secure proposals on the readvertisement. After these are out of the way, we will work up new contracts in the counties to the extent of available moneys.

Very truly yours,
FREDERICK STUART GREENE
Commissioner.

'PHONE USERS PLEASANT JOLT?

Kingston telephone users are receiving a "pleasant" jolt as they receive their telephone bills for the month of July from the New York Telephone Company. For instance, those who pay a rental of $1.50 a month, receive a bill for $2.25. The two dollar item is for the July service as all bills are payable in advance. The 25 cent item is for increase in S. A. N. service charge from June 16 to 20. Those who pay a higher rental for the service are charged more in proportion.

Parish Priest, Well Received.

The three act comedy drama, "The Parish Priest," was again presented by the Daughters of Isabella, Court Santa Maria, last night. The performance was given in St. Joseph's School Hall for the benefit of St. Ann's church of Sawkill. The play was very well presented, each member of the cast being well fitted to play his or her part. Specialty features were vocal solos by Sophie and Solomon Rodner, who were dressed as a Red Cross nurse and a Yank respectively, and a vocal solo by Miss Sarah Humphrey, which was well rendered. Music was furnished by Curt Shurtler's orchestra, there being dancing after the program.

School Picnic.

The annual school picnic and outing of Livingston Street Lutheran Church and school will be held on July 4 at Mrs. Grose's grove on Delaware avenue. The children will meet at the school at 9 o'clock and march to the grounds. Games, races, fishing pond, a golf-rack and amusements of various kinds have been provided. Dinner and supper will be served, also an abundance of refreshments will be on hand the entire day. Everybody cordially invited to attend and spend a pleasant day with the children.

Minstrel At Sawkill.

The Central Athletic Club will hold a minstrel at St. Ann's Hall, in Sawkill on Thursday evening, July 3rd. The members have been rehearsing for the past month, so those that are present, will see a real minstrel. Stages will leave the Central Post Office at 7:30. A large crowd have already signified their intention of going. The minstrel will be given for the benefit of St. Ann's church.

Profit Sharing At Van's.

The branch employees in Newburgh and Kingston will also participate in the profit sharing plan.

Poughkeepsie's Saloons Closed.

The saloons in Poughkeepsie were all closed tight on Tuesday, and not even 2.75 per cent beer was sold that day. The saloons were unwilling to take chances. Poughkeepsie is one of the few cities in the country where prohibition is being strictly enforced, says the Poughkeepsie Evening Star.

Police on Vacation.

Policemen Walker, Shader and Feul have returned to duty after a pleasant vacation, and Sergeant Hanley and Officers Ryan and Soper are enjoying theirs. Officer Cornelius Van Buren is active night sergeant this week at the city hall.

FOURTH OF JULY TO BE OBSERVED

With Fireworks, Music and Oratory at Kingston Point Park and Forsyth Park—Common Council Make Arrangements for Municipal Event.

The common council met as a committee of the whole Tuesday evening to complete arrangements for a municipal celebration of the Fourth of July in Kingston, and a complete program of what will occur at both Kingston Point Park and Forsyth Park the evening of the Fourth will be printed in The Freeman when ready.

It was reported that evening that William O'Reilly would furnish fireworks for both parks. Each display would cost a little over $100. The program committee is still trying to secure orators for each park. They have secured two male soloists who will render two solos, and band music has been arranged for.

The municipal celebration will occur in the evening, and will be practically the same at both Kingston Point Park and Forsyth Park. Everything will be free to the public, and it is hoped that both parks will have record attendances that evening.

DERRENBACHER RETIRES.

Was Sing Sing Keeper For Thirty Years.

John Derrenbacher, the oldest keeper in point of service in Sing Sing prison, retired on a pension Tuesday after thirty years on duty. During that time he served under sixteen wardens and no charge ever was brought against him. Derrenbacher has known all of the famous criminals in the prison for the last two generations. He was assigned to the deathhouse when it was built in 1889, and was stationed there for seven years.

Among the murderers he guarded were Carlisle Harris, Dr. Buchanan, Marie Barber, the first woman sentenced to death in the electric chair, and who afterward was freed by a new trial, and Mrs. Martha Place, who was executed. For a long time Derrenbacher was posted at the double set of steel barred gates leading into the prison. It was his job to see that no inmate slipped through with departing visitors or employees by mistake. None did.

John Derrenbacher is a Kingston man originally, a brother of Jacob E. Derrenbacher of the Rondout Savings Bank and of Mrs. Alonzo Terpening and Mrs. Jacob Rice.

A dance will be held at the Kingston Point Casino this evening. Shurtler's orchestra will furnish the music. The attendance is expected to be unusually large as a party on a moonlight sail is scheduled to arrive from Poughkeepsie and a large number will no doubt attend.

CITY NOT WET ONLY MOIST

No Trouble Getting 2.75 Per Cent Beer and Diluted Wine with 90 Per Cent of Saloons Open—No Arrests Made by Police.

July 1 was not the "thirsty-first" of July expected in Kingston, and while the city was not "wet," it was surely moist, for there was no trouble in getting 2.75 per cent beer, while port, sherry and other wines were "diluted" with seltzer or water.

It was estimated this morning that fully 90 per cent of the saloons in Kingston were open Tuesday and today and the indications are that they will continue open until a decision on the weak beer is handed down by the courts. So far no arrests have been made in Kingston, and likely none will be until the department of justice decides on its course. The same condition applies to other cities in the state, as far as can be ascertained.

While there was no trouble Tuesday in getting all the beer and wine one desired, the saloons were not rushed with patrons, and only the usual week day business was transacted.

That there were no unusual conditions during Tuesday is found by a glance at the blotter at police headquarters, which showed that not a single drunk had been arrested that day or evening.

While "hard stuff," such as whiskey, was banned, the ones "in the know" claim that there was no trouble getting it if "you were known."

W. S. S. SALES FALL OFF BADLY

The receipts on the fifth day of the W. S. S. campaign now on show an alarming falling off. Uptown post office station which has always been among the leaders sold only $356.50 in W. S. S. first five days. This should have been ten times this amount and we hope investors will call at the post office and begin investing out of their July 1st dividends and other income. In the country districts the same disappointing results for the first five days appear. Following is record of fifth day:

Name of town or district	Amount
Uptown Post Office, City of Kingston	$ 356.50
Connelly (South Rondout)	20.50
Hurley	27.50
Marlborough	22.00
Glascow	34.00
Phoenicia	85.75
Ulster Park	54.45
Modena	25.00
Total fifth day	$ 646.00
Total heretofore	$ 6275.00
Grand Total to date	$ 6921.00

Let's all make a record over the 4th of July—the greatest 4th since 1776. We should all be happy and respond with our savings to our country's call for funds to complete the job "Over Here" as well "Over There."

W. D. BRINNIE,
County Chairman.
W. C. DEWITT,
City Chairman.

4TH EXERCISES AT CITY PARKS

The city of Kingston will celebrate the Fourth of July this year by appropriate exercises at Kingston Point Park and at Forsyth Park. The exercises will commence at 5 o'clock in the evening at both places, and will consist of a patriotic address, music and a display of fireworks. There will also be band concerts during the afternoon at both parks.

The city has not provided any large, set pieces, or elaborate display this year, as fireworks are expensive now. It has been the endeavor of the mayor and common council to expend the Fourth of July appropriation in such a manner as will best appeal to the children as well as the adults. The fireworks will consist of aerials, maroons, searchlights and lightning wheels, aeroplanes, changing wheels, aeroplane wheels, palm jewels, silver glories and a large number and assortment of nine-inch and twelve-inch shells and red fire torches.

The program at Forsyth Park will be: Mayor Canfield, presiding; America; Invocation; Walter Weeks; Patriotic Address; Walter Weeks; Display of Fireworks; Band Concert.

The program at Kingston Point Park will be: Samuel M. Watts, president of the common council, presiding; America; Invocation; Harry Clearwater; Patriotic Address; Alfred D. Van Buren; Solo; Harry Clearwater; Display of Fireworks; Band Concert.

New Notes.

Gerald A. Fagan, 31 Green street, this city, has been appointed a notary public by Governor Alfred E. Smith.

FIRST ARREST UNDER NEW LAW

Abram Alcon, Strand Shoe Dealer, Arrested Tuesday for Violating Sidewalk Ordinance—Pleaded Guilty, and Discharged with Warning.

Some time ago the board of public works enacted an ordinance called the sidewalk ordinance which forbids the display of merchandise on the sidewalks in front of business places, unless a permit was first secured from the board. Alderman Ralph Mann, the Strand shoe dealer, is the man who first instituted an agitation for the passage of such an ordinance.

The ordinance has recently gone into effect and the first arrest for its violation was made Tuesday afternoon by Officer Ray Saelhoff who placed Abram Alcon, the Strand shoe dealer, under arrest.

Mr. Alcon was arraigned before Judge Schirck this morning in police court, and entered a plea of guilty. The charge against him was that he insisted upon displaying goods on a case extending fifteen inches over the sidewalk without first securing a permit from the board of public works.

As it was the first arrest under the ordinance Judge Schirck discharged Mr. Alcon with a warning informing him that the ordinance would be enforced, and that it was up to Alcon to obey it.

MYSTERY SHROUDS STRAND SHOOTING

Frank O'Reilly, the Blacksmith, Finds Horse He is Leading Through Street, is Full of Bullet Holes—How was Animal Shot?

Deep, dark, dark mystery surrounds the shooting of William J. Turk's big gray horse, one of the handsome team that hauls one of the Turk lumber wagons. Tuesday morning on the Strand in front of Kaplan furniture store, Frank O'Reilly, the popular Broadway blacksmith, who was leading the team up the Strand on the way to his shop to place new shoes on their feet, is deeply puzzled over the mystery, but has a theory as to how it happened.

To bring out the salient facts in the case it should be noted that Mr. O'Reilly that morning had gone to the Turk stable to alter the team. As he was leading them through the Strand there was a terrific explosion. The horse, startled, leaped in the air, but Mr. O'Reilly did not even look around as an explosion or so is nothing startling in his young life.

As he led the team of handsome grays into the shop his assistant, Robert Boyle, glanced up from his work of shoeing another horse and after one glance at the team said, "What's the matter with that horse? Look he is all bloody."

It was even so. From the horse's belly fell drops of blood. Hastily examining the animal Mr. O'Reilly made the startling discovery that the horse had fourteen bullet holes in its skin from which the blood was flowing.

How was the animal shot? Mr. O'Reilly's theory, which sounds reasonable, is that the explosion he heard on the Strand was caused by one of the team stepping on a shot-gun cartridge, which exploded hurling its contents into the animal's side. While trying to fit the theory to the fact, Mr. O'Reilly was unable to find the empty cartridge on the shale brick.

R-34 MAKING STEADY PROGRESS IN TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Wireless Reports From Big British Dirigible Show Her in Fog Bank off Irish Coast—Should Reach Mineola Friday or Saturday.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, July 2.—The giant British dirigible R-34, which left East Fortune, Scotland, at 1:43 this morning for the United States, was about 500 land miles from its starting point at 2:15 this afternoon, according to a message received from her commander, and was sailing westward without any trouble.

London, July 2.—The first attempt in the history of the world to fly across the Atlantic Ocean in a dirigible balloon is under way today, with the great British dirigible R-34 pushing westward towards America above the North Atlantic lane.

Leaving the East Fortune aerodrome near Edinburgh at 1:43 o'clock this morning (British time), the balloon was following the north-west steamer lane for St. Johns and making 45 knots an hour until a thick fog into which the R-34 plunged during the morning cut down her speed from 40 to 32 knots. Major Scott reported in a wireless message at noon. At that time the dirigible was in latitude 55 degrees and 7 minutes north and 14 degrees and 50 minutes west.

Unless the R-34 encounters gales or strong head winds, she should arrive at Roosevelt Field, near Mineola, N. Y., on Friday, probably in the late afternoon or evening.

The United States navy is represented on board the balloon in the person of Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne, who is working as a member of the crew. There are more than a score of men in the great balloon and everything possible had been done to insure their comfort on the long trip through the sky.

Careful preparations had been made and the greater part of Tuesday had been given over to careful inspection of the mechanism of the balloon. Every test known to aeronautic science was given to the dirigible to insure the utmost safety. An immense supply of petrol was taken on board as a precaution in case the airship was blown out of her course and would have to travel a greater distance than the schedule called for.

In addition to Major Scott and Lieutenant Lansdowne, U. S. A., the following are included in the crew: Captain Greenhard, first officer; Lieutenant Shotter, engineer officer; Major Cooke, navigator; Colonel Hunt and Major Pritchard.

TAXI DRIVERS' FILE PROTEST

With Common Council Against Not Being Allowed to Solicit Trade at Kingston Point—Want Motor Bus Franchises—Other Matters at Busy Session.

Tuesday taxi drivers who have been in the habit of soliciting fares at Kingston Point Park when the Day Line steamers berthed at the Point were ordered to move out by the police. The fact that they were "chased out" as one taxi man expressed it led them to get up a petition, signed by a majority of the taxi drivers of the city, petitioning the common council to grant them permission to solicit fares at some suitable place in the park.

This petition was filed with the common council and brought up at the regular monthly meeting held that evening at the city hall. The petition was referred to the board of public works. It is said that the reason the taxi drivers were ordered out Tuesday was that some of them have been making a nuisance of themselves.

Want Motor Bus Franchise.

Two applications for franchises to run motor bus lines were read and referred to the committee on laws and rules. Peter Kleis of No. 101 Partition street, Saugerties, wanted a franchise to run from Saugerties to Kingston. He stated in his petition that he had been operating since June of 1918.

Charles Kidd of No. 53 Downs street, who has been operating the New Paltz-Kingston motor bus line also applied for a franchise. He has been operating since April of 1918.

Pardee's Request Granted.

City Treasurer Pardee asked for an appropriation of $150 to pay extra clerk hire during the school tax collection period, and his request was granted.

Miss Minnie E. Risoley, assistant to City Assessor Block, was granted an increase in pay of $10 a month.

"Spending Loads of Money."

City Clerk Doremus read a number of board of health bills which footed up a tidy sum and led Aldermen Mann and Kelly to make a few remarks. Alderman Mann believed that the bills should be made public so the public should know how much money the health board was spending.

Alderman Kelly wanted to know what the bill for some $300 was for, and was informed it was for the salary of the bacteriologist.

Alderman Schlip wanted to know what his duties consisted of.

Connelly Explains.

Dr. Connelly, of the Eleventh ward, was given the privilege of the floor and said that he could probably explain to the aldermen about the matter. In the first place "he" was a "she" and had been engaged as bacteriologist by the health board, and it was a good investment. He said that a short time ago he had a patient and his condition was such that he decided to have a blood test made. It was Saturday night when he went to the laboratory.

Miss Easton, the bacteriologist, received him most courteously and made the test for him, going to the laboratory on Sunday morning in order to complete it. She was a young woman who knew her business, and securing that test as quick as he had was of most material assistance in administering the right treatment to the patient. Since then she had made several more important tests for him. The bills of the health board were audited and ordered paid without any further discussion.

Tombstones Broken.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., sent in a communication directing attention to the disgraceful condition into which the Houghtaling burying ground on Pine street, and the Sharpe burying ground on Albany avenue had fallen into. The tombstones on many of the graves were broken and defaced. The burying grounds were used as a playground by children during the day and by evil minded persons at night. The D. A. R. asked that something be done to remedy conditions. The communication was referred to the board of public works.

Winkop Place Deed.

Miss Sarah B. Reynolds sent in a communication and a deed to her interests in Winkop Place, which she agreed to deed free to the city provided the city did not assess her or her heirs for any improvements that might be made later to the street. The proposal was accepted.

School Tax Lower.

The board of education filed its budget with the council and it was adopted. It fixes the school tax at $3.87, which is ten cents lower than last year's school tax. A resolution fixing the tax levy was adopted.

The council also adopted an ordinance that school bonds maturing April 1, 1920, amounting to $15,500, be retired by the issuance of new bonds to bear interest at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent, and payable April 1, 1920.

Other matters will be found elsewhere.

EXQUISITE ROBE FOR BRIDE

Romance might well be the name of this delicate robe de chambre for the bride. It is pale blue georgette with a quaint apron of ecru lace and sun-glow rose at the waist. Its airy softness best suits the curves of the body.

WHEN FASHIONS COME BACK

After Styles Have Had Their Day They Usually Return for Another Tryout.

All modes have their entrances and their exits, but they seldom if ever leave the stage of fashion never to return. After their brief run as headliners they retire from the boards, it is true, but as a rule only temporarily. If we wait long enough, back they come—and with increased popularity. For instance, once upon a time every well-trained maid and matron knew how to develop the most intricate designs in knitting and crocheting, and then for a number of years anyone who did profess a fondness for and showed a deftness in this sort of work was termed "old-fashioned."

The war, however, created a need that only knitted garments could fill, and for patriotic reasons every woman was willing and anxious to become adept with the knitting needle.

The signing of the armistice resulted in lessening the demand for knitted wear to a great degree, but women are not giving up their interest in old-time arts so quickly. Once more the craft of the crochet hook is coming into its own.

Not only are women going back to the methods of their grandmothers and working out all sorts of novel ideas for household linen and home decoration, but they are using crochet work as a simple means to an effective end in personal adornment.

Could anything be more attractive than this smock? Fashioned in a bottle-blue crepe, crocheted medallions of blue and green and a crocheted edge give the blouse an air quite out of the ordinary. Incidentally the smock blouse is quite the thing to don for afternoons at home. It is both chic and "comfy."

TRIP TO FASHIONLAND

There are very high collars worn. Navy taffeta is preferred for silk suits.

Directoire pokes vie with oriental turbans.

Collars are frequently round in the back.

Shining metallic appliques are being used.

Buttons are of corozo, porcelain and crystal.

Shoulders are sometimes cut on kimono lines.

Silk fringe is used on frocks of serge or wool.

Ostrich still holds the lead as a hat trimming.

The string belt is a companion of the sport suit.

Metal fabrics are used for entire evening dresses.

Open cuffs are cool and pretty for summer dresses.

Spring coats for children are rather scantily cut.

Colonial shoes are one of the favored styles for spring.

A blouse of marine-blue satin has sleeves of ecru tulle.

A graceful frock of voile has a diagonally tucked skirt.

Fashions shows embroideries in number of pearl sequins.

Printed georgette is now being used for separate blouses.

Evening wraps are elaborately embroidered on the sleeves.

A frock of chestnut satin is embroidered in gold and black.

Streamers of ribbon.

Ribbon in irregular widths hanging in long streamers is a distinguishing feature of some attractive dress models by Paquin.

Turned to Jan.

The New York detective cautiously "read the knife" under the paper containing the explosion. As it came out a sticky mass oozed out, and Mrs. Mary Lapham's infant machine turned to iron.

New York Exchange Building, Philadelphia

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 2, 1919.

Some men may be surprised to find that, after all, the best "appetizer" is good, well cooked food.

There is food enough in sight to meet the world's needs, says Mr. Hoover, who failed to add that it is out of sight unless you have the price.

The "Prince of Denmark," who expects to visit America has a less celebrated name than Hamlet and we may be sure it will be impossible for him to look like a melancholy Dane in the midst of the good times he will have over here.

According to a Chicago market report, our beef supplies are from 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds a month more than the demand. Presumably large stocks are held off the market in order to maintain excessive prices.

It is complained that "men who were drafted in July were killed in September," but the really important point is that recently drafted Americans got to the scene in record-breaking time, put the Germans to flight and ended the war.

A New York woman claims $10,000 damages from her chiropractor on the ground that her toe became infected after treatment and she was no longer able to dance. Nothing is said about her inability to walk, that presumably being regarded by her as a much less important matter.

The Germans of the Rhine provinces were said to be eager for the peace treaty to be signed, fearing that if the Allied and American troops advanced they would devastate the country and destroy all the machinery. The Rhenish Germans have not already suffered at the hands of the army of occupation; they merely remember what they did in France and expect the like to be done to them.

The report comes that out of one family in France near Ypres 13 sons were killed in battle and four others were severely wounded, one daughter was killed by a German shell, and the father and another daughter were executed by the Germans for a trivial offense. One would naturally suppose that only the mother of this luckless family survived, but it seems that M. Vanhee had 36 children, 22 sons and 14 daughters, so the widow still has quite half of her large family left to help to make her forget and cheer her declining years.

IN THE PERSHING STADIUM.

Some 1,500 athletes of the Allied and American armies have been competing in field sports in the Pershing Stadium in Paris, furnishing a great spectacle for the French. The British army has not been represented, which is surprising in view of the Englishman's love of sport, but athletes from Canada and Britain's Pacific possessions have taken part, and the other contestants mentioned include young soldiers from Belgium, Brazil, China, Czechoslovakia, France, Guatemala, Hungary, Italy, Portugal, Rumania and Serbia, all of whom while enjoying themselves have doubtless learned not a little about sport from the Americans who have been taking the lead and winning most of the events, their only experienced competitors being Canadian and other British soldiers.

Commenting French newspapers are quoted as saying that America is making her greatest gift to France "in arousing the French people to the necessity of physical and health education and rebuilding." The same newspapers argued and wonder at the efficiency of the American athletes who completed the Pershing Stadium in time for the games after French labor troubles had seemed to make this impossible, and suggested that if the work had been done in the French way it would have required three years. No doubt there is a lesson for Europe in the energy and "pep" that goes into both American sport and engineering, and of course the Pershing Stadium sports have provided interesting and useful diversion for the armies waiting for the peace.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Employer—"The boy I had before was worth twice as much as you are." Boy—"Did he get it?" Boston Transcript.

"Swept by saline breezes and washed by the waves of the sea. That's our town." Any other street cleaning facilities? Inquired the old grouch.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Hobson—"That burglar client of yours doesn't seem very grateful to you for acquitting him." Dobson—"He says I proved him so innocent that his pals didn't trust him with a swell job."—Judge.

First Workman—"Yes, the corporation has offered to give us one-half the profits for the coming year, in addition to our wages." Second Workman—"Well, tell 'em when they offer us all of the profits we'll consider it."—Life.

"Do you think our oratorical friend was sincere when he asked the crowd not to interrupt him by demonstrations of approval?" "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "there are men who would rather listen to their own voices than to applause."—Washington Star.

"What is your opinion on this subject?" inquired the constituent. "My opinion," replied Senator Sorghum, "is that opinions aren't worth mentioning just now. What we want is action."—Washington Star.

Farmer—"So you're an experienced milker, hey? Now, which side up a cow do you set on when you milk her?" Applicant for job—"Oh, I ain't a bit partickler. If the cow ain't!"—Buffalo Express.

Wife (with newspaper)—"Another strike. Isn't it awful?" Hub—"Can't say until you give me particulars—it might be a strike of tax collectors."—Boston Transcript.

"Why is Flubdub sputtering so about the service at that cafe?" "Some slick lawyer persuaded a waiter to serve Flubdub with a subpoena."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Failure Always Has Its Price

A London magistrate declares there are such things as a man having a right to take his own life. This doesn't sound morally sound, but all the same, there is something good about it. It is a man's right to take his own life, and that is a fact.

Sensitiveness of Plants

When rain is about to fall the elder shrub's leaves, bristling with tiny droplets, are seen to tremble and fold. The young blossoms are also carefully sheltered by bristling leaves which move forward in the evening and wrap them round.

HERE AND THERE ABOUT THE TOWN

"I wonder who made all the money during the world war?" remarked the customer, as he leaned back in his chair for a chat.

"I know it wasn't me," replied the busy barber with a grin.

"There is no question but some are getting it right along," continued the customer, "even if the war has stopped for you don't see any drop in the price of food or other necessities."

"They tell me that after the close of the Civil war things remained high for seven years," said the barber.

"Gosh," retorted the customer, "I hope that don't apply to this war."

"And so do I," agreed the barber, "for while there are a lot who can afford to pay the price, there are a greater number who can't."

"You said something," replied the customer in fervent tones.

"Aside from those who cleaned up fortunes on war contracts and stocks," said the barber, "there was a big jump in wages on the part of certain classes of work."

"They say that is the trouble in the coal fields," interrupted the customer, "for the miners get enough pay now to only work three or four days and can afford to lay off the rest of the week, and that helps to decrease the supply of coal mined."

"I am not worrying about coal," replied the barber as long as this weather keeps up.

"But you will next winter," retorted the customer, "unless you have your bins filled."

A Popular Style.

Waist, 2611, skirt, 2605.
No woman's wardrobe seems complete without a plaited skirt, a model that is good for sports wear, for traveling as well as for business. In the combination here portrayed waist pattern 2611 is combined with skirt 2605. Plaid suiting was used for its development, but skirt and waist may be of different material. The waist is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 2 1/2 yards of 44 inch material. The skirt has 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material. The skirt measures about 2 1/4 yards at the foot, with plaits drawn out.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents for each pattern, in silver or stamps to the Freeman Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

THE WORLD AT M. E. CENTENARY

Bizarre Scenes at Great Celebration of American Methodist Missions at Columbus—350 Actors and Chorus of 1,000.

Telegram to The Freeman.

Columbus, O., July 2.—The Hall-lujah chorus sung by a thousand exultant voices pours out of the coliseum nightly, symbolizing the kingdom of Christ triumphing through the centuries.

At the same time, from across the lawn sounds the low chanted prayers of Hindu worshippers, bowing low over their funeral pyres, the wailing note of Hawaiian instruments, the measured beat of the tom-tom, the soft voices of a negro quartet in plaintive plantation hymns, the droning sermon of a Chinese preacher, a burst of martial music from the Rainbow Division band, a Korean wedding march, and a blatant measure of American jazz, symbolizing the brotherhood of man in the 20th century.

The night sounds alone are symbolic of the remarkable element of internationalism found in the centenary celebration of American Methodist ministers being staged here. With the coming of evening, and its blaze of lights, the exposition grounds lose their identity entirely, and reveal a magnificent panorama representing the sights and sounds and peoples of the whole world.

The most vivid impression of the exposition as a whole is its immensity, while the life and color of the constantly shifting scenes are almost as compelling to the spectator. The picturesque element is everywhere, in the crowds thronging the grounds and in the pageants which are being given at all times of the day and night.

In the mass of humanity which surges over the grounds are dark serving many of their native costumes of their native lands, chattering in strange tongues and observing many of their native customs on this, their first visit to America. One little group of Indian holy men stop just outside of the American building to join the crowd of bishops, the preacher and his family from some place out in Kansas, and the negro preacher from the mountains of Tennessee. Before a soft-drink stand an imposing Moorish gentleman in red head dress, a blinking, bearded Indian baby in his mother's arms, a deaconess in black with a crisp lawn bonnet, a group of Sunday school superintendents, and a dark skinned Hawaiian beauty, stand elbow to elbow, drinking ginger ale and cherry pop. Such an assemblage may be seen at any time about this international canteen and is only one of the representative details in this program to promote world brotherhood.

Seven nationalities were represented in the nursery where mothers check their babies while they attend the meetings. Little delegates from Alaska, India, Japan and other remote parts of the world eyed each other dubiously at first.

The outstanding feature of the entire exposition is the dramatic pageant, "The Wayfarer," presented every evening by 350 actors in costume, a cast of professionals and a chorus of 1,000 voices. The scenic and lighting effects are indescribably beautiful and the music and action in perfect accord. The production takes Wayfarer on a journey through the ages to show him that every age has its problems and that God has emerged triumphant in the face of all combinations of circumstances. One exquisite setting follows another until the superb climax where the spirit of the wanderer is changed from despair to faith. With the angel chorus in the background, looking more like the ethereal figures of mural painting of one of the old masters than human beings, the old messengers of the cross, from the time of Paul to our own day pass in review, showing the gradual extension of the Kingdom of Christ through the ages.

"Stickingness."

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," but lots of moss gathers on the man that does not find his place and stick like a dog to the root.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Only the possessions which we use are of present value to us. A man may have a money fortune, and yet be poverty stricken in the very things which that money would buy him. The money is his all the time, but it is of little or no value to him because he lets it alone.

WHAT TO EAT.

There are few people who feel that a meal has been satisfying that is not finished with some kind of dessert, and usually feel if none is provided that the dinner is not a success.

Peach Sherbet.—Put a pound of sugar and a quart of water on to boil 20 minutes; let cool, then add one and one-half cups of peach pulp, the strained juice of an orange and the juice of half a lemon. Freeze.

Date Crackers.—Put a pound of washed and pitted dates, with a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water, in a sauce pan and cook until soft and smooth. Cool. Cream a cupful of shortening, add a cup of brown sugar, two and one-half cups of rolled oats which have been parched to a light brown, two cups of flour; stir and mix well; add a teaspoonful of soda to half a cupful of hot water and stir into the mixture. Roll out, cut and place a spoonful of the fruit on a cookie, cover with another, then bake.

Mint Sherbet.—Soak half a cup of chopped mint leaves in the juice of two lemons and three oranges half an hour. Boil two cups of sugar and a cup of water five minutes then pour over the other ingredients. When cold strain into a freezer, add the grated rind of the fruit and the white of an egg beaten stiff with a cup of whipped cream. This sherbet may be served as a dessert or as an accompaniment to a lamb roast.

Junket is a most delicious dessert for a hot day when one wants just a dainty finish to the meal. Add a tablet of rennin to a quart of lukewarm milk, sweetened and flavored. Stir well after crushing the tablet and dissolving it in a tablespoonful of water. Then pour the mixture into the sherbet cups or glasses in which it is to be served. When well set put on ice to chill.

Chocolate pie may be prepared in the same way, adding two squares of melted chocolate, or a prune pie, adding a cup of prunes which have been put through a ricer.

ORANGE CO. FAIR ASSOCIATION

The Orange County Agricultural Society organized in 1841, has always enjoyed the cheerful and efficient services of a superior class of men. The roll contains the names of Orange county's highest type of citizens, men especially distinguished for available ability. It is one of the first agricultural societies in the state, and under prudent direction has steadily advanced to a very commanding position, among the up-to-date organizations of the state. From the beginning the women of the county have contributed very generously of their constructive inventive resources to make the annual exhibition attractive and educational.

The society was incorporated to promote the interest of agriculture and horticulture, the domestic and mechanical arts, and improvement of the breedings of all domestic animals, especially horses, cattle, swine, sheep and poultry. And in these years wonderful results have been achieved. Orange county bred horses have a world wide reputation for speed and beauty. Our home bred cattle are the pride of expert cattle men throughout the Empire State. The aggregated products exhibited in domestic and historical departments are the wonder of all intelligent visitors. The records and attainment of the society as displayed at Middletown from year to year entitle it to the enthusiastic support of every man, woman and school child in the whole county. It is the people's product, the people's fair, by their presence and generous support the folks from every homestead should come to the fair. The grounds belong to the people of the county and under the efficient labor of General Superintendent Howell have been transformed into a park of beauty.

O'REILLY LIVES

In Old Action Just Decided In Appellate Division.

Among decisions handed down Tuesday by the appellate division of the supreme court, third department, at Albany, is one in the following local case:

James T. O'Reilly, as receiver of the property of James McCord, plaintiff vs. George R. Adams and others, defendants. Willard M. Adams and others, appellants. The Roundout Savings Bank, respondent. Order unanimously affirmed, with ten dollars costs and disbursements. This is one of other old time actions growing out of assignment of bank books of James McCord, deceased, which came into possession of the late George R. Adams. The litigation has been going on for several years. By the decision James T. O'Reilly loses.

VETOED AGAIN; HERE'S ANOTHER

Of course, it was the Connelly Theater Ordinance, but Resourceful Alderman from Eleventh Submitted Another—Will It Be Vetoed?

Speaking in bowling terms it is one down and one up with Mayor Canfield yet to bowl a "spare," in the famous theater ordinance question which has been occupying the courts of the council chamber for the past two years. The theater question was put to sleep some time ago by Mayor Canfield with his veto, but arose and shook itself at a still more recent meeting when Alderman Connelly, of the Eleventh ward, father of the theater ordinance, introduced another, which was adopted as usual.

At the regular monthly meeting of the city fathers held Tuesday evening, Mayor Canfield returned the Connelly ordinance with his disapproval on the grounds that no provision had been made fixing the license fee for a theater seating between 250 to 500. The mayor said that undoubtedly it was an oversight on the part of the one who drew the ordinance.

Dr. Connelly Was Ready.

Evidently Alderman Connelly had become aware of the fact that Mayor Canfield intended to veto the theater ordinance, and after the mayor's veto was read he said that he had had hopes that the theater chestnut had disappeared, but it was still with us. He said that so that there could be no question raised later he would ask his brother aldermen to vote to sustain the mayor's veto, because he had prepared another ordinance covering the point mentioned by the mayor.

Connelly Explains Position.

President Waits called for a vote on the mayor's veto and it was unanimously sustained, and then Alderman Connelly fulfilled his promise and handed up another ordinance which read exactly like the one vetoed with the exception that it covered the point on which the mayor had vetoed the other.

Dr. Connelly said that he had no objection to the aldermen either raising or lowering the amounts he had fixed in his ordinance.

The highest fee, that of $140, covered theaters like the Orpheum, the Kingston Opera House and the Keeney Theater, and they will have to pay that sum for a license next year unless the mayor again vetoes the Connelly ordinance.

Roosa's Amendment Lost.

Alderman Roosa of the Second ward offered an amendment to section J of the proposed ordinance making the license fee $100 instead of $140 and the amendment was seconded by Alderman Preston of the First ward. The amendment was lost by a vote of 4 to 4. The four voting for it being Aldermen Preston, Roosa, Higgins and Hull, while those opposed were Aldermen Schick, Schlip, Kelly, Mann, Kirchner, Kulimann, Van Valkenburgh, Connelly and Purvis.

The Ordinance Adopted.

The vote was then taken on the Connelly ordinance which was adopted by a vote of 11 to 2. The two voting against the adoption were Aldermen Preston and Roosa.

Will Mayor Veto?

In the past two years there must have been fully a dozen ordinances introduced and knocked down. The question now is will Mayor Canfield veto this latest Connelly ordinance.

Other matters taken up at the session will be found elsewhere.

Went to Adirondacks and Flew Around Mount Marcy.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Lake Placid, July 2.—In the first airplane to fly over the Adirondacks, Lieutenants W. R. Taylor and F. Paul Stevens arrived here Tuesday night after a 300 mile flight from Mineola to join in the official homecoming welcome to be extended to its war heroes by Essex county.

The aviators left Hazlehurst Field at 8:45 a. m., reaching Albany at 10:50, and resuming their flight at 4:40 p. m. After landing at Westport, on Lake Champlain, at 6 o'clock they set out three hours later for Lake Placid, arriving here at 9:25.

After circling the summit of Mt. Marcy, the highest of the Adirondack peaks, 5,344 feet above sea level, the pair landed near the estate of John Brown. During the welcome home celebration the aviators will take part in an aerial circus over mountains and lakes.

Untying the Knot.

There is a marriage custom among the Santals, a tribe in India, by which, after a cash price has been set on the bride by the parents, the fiancé and his lady tie a knot in a string for each day to intervene before the wedding. Then the parents separate; day by day a knot is untied, and when the end of the string is reached the real knot is tied that makes the couple one.

ENTERTAINMENT AT MRS. CARTER'S

Lawn Party. Featured by Boy Scouts, Dancing of Boice Pupils and Miss (Hassbrouck's) Singing.

At the "end of a perfect day," such a day as is pictured in his "Day in June," which seemed just to have slipped away into the first day of July, with the crescent moon and the brilliant evening star and an exquisite sunset all conspiring to form a pastoral setting such as was worthy of the days of classic poetry, the entertainment at the home of Mrs. Williams Carter last evening seemed really to belong to another and fairer world.

Tall and stately elms and maples stand guard before the handsome Colonial home and overarch the lawn which stretches down to the beautiful flower garden, from whose flowering depths, sprang as if by magic the fairy forms which charmed the many guests of the evening.

While the rich crimson and vivid amber of the sunset glorified the peaks of the purple Catskills, and the picture was still rich in color, the Boy Scouts did some very clever stunts in the way of first aid bandaging, etc., and Scout Executive Merrill explained to those present the value of the scout idea and the objective set by him as a part of the national scout movement for the boys of Ulster county, greatly to the interest of the assembly.

Then as the sunset took on mellower tints, bringing into bright relief the semi-circle of Japanese lanterns, stretching from either side of the residence to the very edge of the lovely garden, where at a little distance more of the pretty lanterns twinkled, the Boy Scout bugler announced the approach of the fairy elfin, spirit of the evening.

Only a pen dipped in classic verse could adequately picture the slowly brightening moon showing a warm silver glow between the columns of two tall trees, while the evening star flashed brighter between the branches of two neighboring trees, and the soft summer clouds took on the delicate pinks, blues and purples of the clinging draperies of the nymphs who danced the "Twilight Symphony" their upturned faces haloed by the soft illumination of a mellower spot light.

It was a union of delicate color, grace of movement and beauty of musical effect which would have charmed even a Richard Wagner.

Then came a musical number, wherein Miss Ida Bunting's interpretation, and exquisite playing of the "Original Air," with Variations by Paderewski seemed to have floated to the ears of the listeners on one of the airy winged clouds so harmonious, so evanescent and fleeting was it all.

In answer to the next bugle call, Erna Schmidt, now Diana, goddess of the chase, with bow and spear and classic draperies, through most graceful movement wooed even the hunter's moon to a closer companionship with the twilight world.

As sweetly as the song of the thrush at evening was the birdlike voice of Miss Elizabeth Hassbrouck who sang the "Banjo Song," by Sidney Homer and "Her Rose," by C. Whitney Coombs, to the accompaniment of the restful twilight's summer sounds and the playing of Miss Bunting.

Then up flittered through the shadowy garden walk, perhaps from the heart of a rose, a rosy cupid, whose gilded bow and arrow, less than the sheen of soft golden hair, happy smile and fairy dancing, captivated and held enthralled, the audience. Nor was cupid less loved because the other name was Anna Louise Schmidt. So fleet were the tiny feet that one was slipping in Cinderella fashion was lost in the dew diamond grass, but cupid was coaxed back again by the charmed audience.

Exquisite tones, rich harmonies, softly pulsing, musically dripping notes pictured the coming day and then more martial music portrayed "The Chase," by Paganini-Liszt, as played by Miss Bunting, with that marvelous sympathy with her surroundings for which this young artist is so justly noted.

The pinks and ambers and rose tints of the sunset had deepened into wonderful evening blues overhead, as a flashing green light picked out the dim distance amidst the surrounding mysterious universal greenery as Miss Katharine Kearney in softest draperies of the same blue and greens with a lingering touch of crimson, danced out of the garden depths onto the light-flooded lawn in the "False Brilliant," a wonderful bit of poetry of motion and color!

By the thrill of their heartstrings the guests knew themselves still to be mortals, as Miss Hassbrouck sang, "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Roger Quilter; then "Heure Exquise," by Hahn and then came a prank of Puck's, for taking note of the times, Miss Hassbrouck sang, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," but so sweetly did she sing this loved song, that many lost the Puckish prank in the heart of the song!

Then up from the garden danced a little pink roebuck, Helen Talbot, who bent and bowed under the summer breeze against the background of soft green foliage, till one could almost catch the roe's bewitching fragrance.

"The Song of the Robin," as Erna Schmidt danced up the garden path she threw wide open the gates of poetic imagery and with face illuminated and feet winged with grace, she danced exquisitely this beautiful interpretative dance, then disappeared in the gathering shadows of the summer evening.

Mrs. Helen Westbrook accompanied the dancers.

HAD "GONE WEST"

Pathetic Incident in Hospital
Bombarded by Huns.

Wounded Young French Infantry Officer Thought He was Going "Over the Top," and in That Belief Passed On.

The head nurse watched the stretchers clatter slowly and awkwardly down the path and disappear in the darkness between them a silent, blanket-wrapped figure. Then slowly and thoughtfully she turned and entered the field hospital tent. The pale little nurse's aid, garbed in the picturesque blue of the American Red Cross, rose and came to meet her. In subdued whispers, scarcely audible in the big vacant stillness of the tent, she told the story of any changes which had taken place in the condition of the boy who lay so bravely silent on the 50 tiny cots.

"Bartrand, that young infantry officer in bed No. 9, with the bad chest wound—he does not seem right," she said softly. "His lips are blue, and he sleeps so much."

"Bring your flash," replied the head nurse, as she led the way over to the dark corner, where, in a bed separated from the rest, the young Bertrand lay, apparently sleeping. Leaning over him lightly, with a mother touch she laid her hand on his forehead. The boy's eyes opened, dazedly, and blinked in the glare of the aid's flashlight. Then, as with an effort, he smiled.

Suddenly the tent flap nearest them opened. The Scotch orderly entered, reached quickly for the knob that governed the big center tent light and switched it off. Without a word the aid covered her flash and sprang to extinguish the desk light, while old Macdon, the trusty, crept along the tent wall behind the beds to be sure that each window was tightly closed.

Overhead there gradually came into hearing a steady, regularly interrupted drone, like that of a malignant insect—then a flash—a great roar, not very far away—and the tent shook like a leaf in the wind. At the first sound of the raid Bertrand had started, sitting upright in bed. The head nurse, helpless in the intense darkness and fearing to make him more restless by attempting to put him down, held him in her arms. Soon, says Modern Hospital, in relation to the story, he began to call out orders, rapidly, precisely, like a man who was used to being obeyed, and then still louder, with more spirit, until his voice rang and reverberated through the open spaces of the tent. "Attention!—Attention!—Attention!—En avant!"

From somewhere in the darkness the voice of the aid, a trifle shrunken, said: "He thinks he's going over."

Another flash—another detonation—this time nearer. The head nurse felt something warm and wet soaking the front of her uniform. Then a silence—it seemed for ages. Finally Macdon, flashing on the light, called out: "They're gone, the beggars!"

He came over to the bed and gave one look at the burden the head nurse held in her arms. Then, taking off his hat, he held it, folded, in front of his coat.

"You can lay him down, miss. I think there's just work for me and the stretchers here now. The poor lad's gone west."

Mule Objected to Burden.

An observer attached to the First army had been up for several hours making notes on enemy infantry operations when he was suddenly attacked by a single-seat combat plane, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. The balloon crew on the ground immediately began to haul the big gas bag down, but the observer was running no chances and took to his parachute. This drifted well back of the lines and deposited him in the midst of a number of grazing army mules, and right outside one mule. The mule, not taking kindly to the sudden load forced on him, began to rear and plunge, starting quite a commotion among the herd, and the observer was rescued with difficulty from his precarious position.

Process Developed by War.

Making parabolic mirrors by chemical deposition on a glass mold is described as one of the war-quickened processes. A layer of silver was deposited chemically on a highly polished glass mirror, and was thickened electrolytically, after which it was given a sixteenth inch plating of copper and a suitable backing of strengthening material. Difference in expansion on heating gave a ready means of loosening the metal from the glass. The silver surface was given a waterproof and heatproof coating of lacquer, and was ready for use in much less time than would have been required for grinding and polishing a glass mirror.

PATHETIC RUINS OF FRANCE

Once Pretty Villages Which Are Now Dead as the Ruins of the Roman Forum.

Most of the villages of northern France are as dead and cold as the ruins of the Roman forum—and not half so beautiful. Here were no great architectural splendors. No priceless art collections. They were nothing but plain, humble little hamlets of plain, hard-tilling peasants. The houses were destroyed and the simple, brave, hardy folks who owned them were also destroyed. The graveyards of the men I had seen at Solsona, Champagne, Verdun, row upon silent row. Here were the graveyards of their homes, village after village, as dead as the men. The only difference was that the soldiers had been buried underground while these ghastly mutilated wrecks still remained exposed to view, writes Elizabeth Frazer in Saturday Evening Post.

There was more of this kind of scenery. And more. And more and more. And at last—so soon does the mind become used by mere external spectacles of horror—I began to feel swelling up inside of me a vague irritation against all these graveyards of gaping, mutilated specters of what had once been human habitations for being so monotonous, so repetitional, so drably, blankly, impassably the same. I wanted them to get better or I wanted them to get worse—or I wanted them to be blotted clean off the map. Those mutilated corpses of towns, with their stark immobility, their contorted postures, their shattered members lying rigidly outstretched on the pavement, began to get on my nerves. They had the same stiff fixity, the same grotesque sprawl that one notes in a human corpse frightfully mangled by a shell.

I had heard of men blown to pieces in battle and unrecognizable, even their identification plates gone. Here were their counterparts in hamlets. The lieutenant, searching his map, murmured doubtfully: "It might be A—or it might be B— It's hard to say."

These nameless ones I put into a list all by themselves and called them X. But presently I gave it up. It was too much like trying to count the volume of water in a reservoir by means of an eye dropper.

He Is Coming.

"But a few short years ago, lay-dees and gentlemen," said the side show lecturer, in tones admirably adapted for declamatory purposes, "we had here, as our greatest living curi-osity, that hideous human horror, the wild man of the Everglades, who three times a day leaped upon our rest-unks of r-r-r-raw and re-e-eking flesh and devoured them with terrible ferocity and blood-curdling yells. He was in due course succeeded by the repulsive freak of nature you now see before you—the bearded and bristly boolevick. He will not work, he never bathes, but day and night kicks incessantly, and in the unintelligible three-cornered language of his native land screams denunciations of everything in existence. Probably year after next he will be superseded by the last pedestrian, a white-eyed, shuddering wretch who will leap 18 feet sideways if you will make a noise like an auto horn."—Kansas City Star.

Where Allies Got Timber.

Timber was essential to military operations, as carried on during the war against the Huns. The chief war theater was northern France and timber was available largely because France had practiced forestry for generations. One hundred years ago the southwestern corner of France, extending from Bordeaux to the Pyrenees mountains was almost as treeless as the prairie, and was fringed by sand dunes which were constantly in movement, burying fields and houses and even whole villages. Napoleon called in engineers and foresters. These men succeeded in holding the dunes in place by planting with maritime pine; and then they planted up the whole interior of the region with the same tree. During the war this region was the largest source of lumber not only for the French army, but for the British and American armies as well.

Trees as Aerials for Wireless.

It is difficult indeed to find something really new in radio communication. Things which are hailed as new in the daily press are more often apt to prove merely developments or improvements along well-known lines, and it is in that class that the recent tree aerial tests at Washington fall. As far back as 1907, experiments were carried out in which trees were employed as aerials. In the recent tests messages were received over quite a distance by means of tree aerials. It was also pointed out that messages could be transmitted through the agency of tree aerials over short distances. However, in view of the remarkably sensitive receiving apparatus available today, the use of tree aerials is no more remarkable than it was back in 1907, with the relatively crude instruments of that time.—Scientific American.

Farm and Country.

Secretary Daniels said at a dinner: "When the layman tries to talk naturally he makes as many mistakes as the city girl on the farm."

"This city girl was smoking her after-dinner cigarette in the hammock on the lawn when a cow began to low mournfully. The city girl blew a smoke cloud into the air and said: "Listen to that poor heifer mewing for her colt!"

Below Zero at Equator.

It is colder at the equator than at the north pole, according to a professor, who claims "he has proved this strange statement by means of balloon ascensions. It is warmer at the North pole. If you go high enough, he says. Balloons with recording instruments attached were sent up to altitudes of 10 to 12 miles. In the tropics the temperature at this height was 148 degrees below zero, while in middle Europe and farther north at the same height, the instruments only recorded 56 to 85 degrees below zero. Another curious fact noted was that the temperature diminishes as the height increases. The balloon ascensions are said to have shown that the coldest temperature is reached at heights of six to seven miles.

Silkworm of the Sea.

Many worms live in the sea, and some of them are very beautiful creatures. But the so-called "silkworm of the sea"—the designation being purely figurative and poetical—is a bivalve mollusc properly known as the pinna and native to the Mediterranean. It spins a silk so beautiful that in ancient days the fiber was reserved exclusively for the weaving of royal garments. This silk is spun by the mollusc to furnish an anchor line by which it fastens itself to a convenient rock. It is extremely fine and very strong. Cleaned, dried and passed through combs, it is reduced to delicate threads of a lustrous brownishyellow hue, which are woven into gloves, stockings and other articles.

Secret of Longevity.

While other folk get jittery in the knees and have asthma and ear-trumpets long before their time, people on the stage seem to have craved the happy secret of perennial youth. And this secret consists more in right thinking than in wearing fancy vests and high-school hats. When old Ponce de Leon put on a new pair of knee pants a few centuries ago and started for Palm Beach, Fla., where he had arranged to discover the fountain of youth, he did not understand this great secret of staying young. So he died at last without being able to conceal his real age from anybody. He should have lived now and gone into the movies.—Thrill Magazine.

UNCLE SAM TRAINED 75,000 DRIVERS FOR DIFFICULT TASKS DURING THE WAR

United States Motor Transports Used in Carrying Supplies to Front in France.

When Uncle Sam's armies finished the war the motor transport corps comprised a force of roughly 150,000 trained drivers of motortrucks, cars and motorcycles.

Of this great force, only about half were trained drivers when they enlisted for the service, so it was necessary in order to have this force of men to train 75,000 men to drive automobile vehicles.

The ammunition trains, supply trains, sanitary trains and casual motorized units which first went overseas were composed of trained drivers, as a rule. Those who came after were the men who did not know cars, engines, or any of the problems of driving, particularly such problems as driving over roads under shell fire or with the great congestion of the roads to the fighting zone in France. The men who came in the second great push of men for the army had therefore to be trained from the very beginning to know the machine, and then to know the problems of driving in formation on military roads.

Big Problems Presented.
The two big phases were the teaching of the mechanism of the truck engine—I say truck because this was by far the more vital part of the training of driving in military formations of huge fleets of trucks.

Now that the war is over the problem of teaching the mechanism of the machine is by far the more important to the military formation required in the army, this can be disposed of quickly.

On the Mexican border, and with the Pershing expedition into Mexico, the problem of mass operations with trucks was of minor importance. The drivers went forward with some semblance of military formation, with certain distances between trucks, and with some attempt at military cohesion. The truck work, however, was more or less of a problem of every man to drive his own machine.

New System Developed.
When the American army reached France, with the greatly restricted area of operation, the shorter distances for ordinary hauls, and the intense congestion of the roads, it was necessary to develop a military precision in handling of trucks, before that unheard of. The French transport was first to develop this precision, and its vital need was shown in the British offensive on the Aisne in 1917, when the enormous number of over 5,000 trucks moved an entire British corps in military formation into the fighting line. Such a column meant nearly 100 miles of length for the train. And to have this body of trucks operating properly the strictest discipline was required.

This truck discipline was first systematized on the French lines by work and experiments at Camp Johnson, Fla., near Jacksonville, the mother school of the motor transport corps, and was soon developed into book form and standardized for the army.

Thorough Training Given.
To the commercial truck operator, however, the work done to train the drivers in the handling of their vehicles was far more important. Every man who went into the corps was given a thorough training in the operation of the motor vehicles, and while the Camp Johnson school was working out truck discipline enormous repair and shop units were in full operation in other parts of the country. Such, for instance at Camp Holabird, near Baltimore, and at Atlanta, while over in the West there were such units as at San Antonio. These were mechanical organizations for repair work and for shop training.

RULES FOR RADIATORS

The radiator takes so little care that we are likely to give it even less than it requires. Here is a simple rule which will give good results:

1. Keep it full, especially with a thermo-siphon cooling system. The less the water, the less the cooling effect and the worse for the motor by overheating.
2. Keep it full when using alcohol in winter. The smaller the volume of mixture, the sooner it boils and evaporates.
3. Keep it full.

TO PROPERLY CUT GASKETS

Plan Which Will Be Found Convenient for Owners of Cars—Frayed Edges Avoided.

Everyone who owns a car has had difficulty with cutting gaskets. Try this method the next time: Put the material—rubber, felt, paper, etc.—over the hole for which it is being cut. Take a ball-head hammer and place it on the material over the hole. Then tap this first hammer gently with another hammer, and the gasket can be cut without the frayed edges that are so annoying.

KEEP WHEELS IN ALIGNMENT

When Car Has Suffered Bump or Crash Against Curb Wheels Should Be Tested at Once.

Whenever the car has suffered a bump of any kind, a crash against the curb or anything of the sort, the wheels should immediately be tested for alignment as a bang of this kind is quite enough to force them out of correct alignment, which will lead to excessive wear.

OIL WILL SILENCE SQUEAKS

If in Hurry to Stop Motor Four Little Kerosene Ours Spring and Shake Car.

If in a hurry to stop a spring from squeaking, pour a little kerosene over it, guiding the oil down the sides with the finger so that it will run between the leaves. Wipe off the excess. Four cylinders oil over the springs the same way. Now shake the car so the oil will be drawn in and find the squeak.

EMERGENCY WHEEL FOR AUTO

Device, Mounted on Axle, Can Be Readily Attached to Disabled Cars by Clamps.

For the garageman who encounters road jobs that necessitate towing in a car with a broken wheel or axle, an emergency wheel, such as is used by one suburban repair shop, is not only adaptable to most any kind of car, electric, gasoline, or steam, but is quickly made up of discarded materials with but little work, says Popular Mechanics.

The wheel is of the regular automobile type with a 34 by 4-inch pneumatic tire. This size being suitable for use on both large and small cars. The axle is either a broken front axle or a short section of a strong steel beam. The emergency axle is best or dropped, the offset being necessary to clear the axle-housing flange or brake drum. The device is attached by means of two U-shaped clamps and nuts. The sketch shows the general appearance, and manner of attaching the emergency wheel to the rear axle of a car, but it may also be used in front, as the clamps are easily shifted.

TO SILENCE RATTLING RODS

Noise Made is Source of Much Annoyance to Occupants of Car—Way to Remedy Trouble.

Where long rods of small diameter are used for brake connections, and so forth, particularly on the smaller cars, the rattle and chattering they make is a source of constant annoyance. There is an easy way, however, to put a stop to these noises. A coil spring one-half inch to an inch in diameter should be firmly attached at one end to the middle of each rod and the other end extended under tension to the frame side member or some other convenient point for anchorage. The tension on these springs will hold the rods rigid and prevent vibration and noise.

Kindness Appreciated.

What a comfort a dull but kindly person is, to be sure, at times! A ground glass shade over a wax lamp does not bring more solace to our dazzled eyes than such a one to our

MRS. PINKY PIG.

"Grunt, grunt, grunt, grunt, excited in the pen," said Miss Ham. "What is the excitement?" asked Grandfather Porky. "It's so exciting and so horrible!" said Pinky Pig. "What is so exciting and so horrible?" asked Sammy Sausage. "Yes, what is so exciting and so horrible?" asked Brother Bacon. "Tell me what is exciting first, and then tell me what is so horrible!" said Master Pink Pig. "Let us hear the news," said Grandfather Porky. "Oh, keep me not waiting," said Miss Ham. "Perhaps some one has left a great big wagon full of food behind the pen or somewhere," said Master Pink Pig. "Perhaps some one has, or let us see if that can be true," said Miss Ham. "That was a bright suggestion on your part," she added. "Yes, let us see if it is true," said Master Pink Pig. "No, it isn't true," squealed Pinky Pig. "If it were true, do you think I would be here? I wouldn't come and tell you all about it, unless—unless I had had all I could possibly have eaten, and even then I don't believe I would have told you. You could have found that out for yourself, for I would have thought that later on I would be hungry and so would go back."

"That's so," said Miss Ham. "Master Pink Pig, that was not a bright suggestion of yours, after all. We might have known if anything like that had happened as we would not have been hearing about it in this excited fashion from Pinky."

"Yes, I made a mistake," said Master Pink Pig, cringing sadly. "I might have known that Pinky Pig was too much of a pig to even do such a thing."

"It's so horrible," said Master Pink Pig, cringing sadly. "I might have known that Pinky Pig was too much of a pig to even do such a thing."

"No pig would do such a thing," said Sammy Sausage. "I would be ashamed of the name of pig, if anyone did," said Miss Ham. "Well, I didn't," said Pinky. "No, you didn't," they all squealed. "But we don't know what is so exciting," said Grandfather Porky. "No, we don't know," said Sammy Sausage. "Please tell, Pinky." "Yes, please tell us," said all the rest of the pigs.

And Pinky, twisting his little tail and grunting quite hard, said: "Mother has eaten up her children." "Horrors!" said all the pigs. That is—all the pigs squealed this except Miss Ham. "Rather a sensible thing for her to do if she felt nervous or ill," said Miss Ham. "Such a thing would act like a tonic."

"You horrible creature, Miss Ham," said Pinky. "This is the second time that my mother, Mrs. Pinky Pig, has eaten her very own children. I'm glad she didn't eat me."

"It would have been one less mouth to feed," said Grandfather Porky. "Oh, well," said Sammy Sausage. "We like Pinky and we're glad you're in the pen."

"Thank you," said Pinky. "Well," said Miss Ham. "I will go right off and see Mrs. Pinky and I will ask her how she enjoyed her little meal."

"It is too horrible to think that mother pigs will become nervous and will feel ill and that they will not think of their little ones as a comfort, but will eat them up," said Pinky Pig. "And all the other pigs agreed, except Miss Ham, who said she could understand, and went off to tell Mrs. Pinky so."

But all the pigs in the pen said they were thankful that their mothers hadn't fed that way about them when they were born.

A BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUT "VETS," TOO.

The veterans used to be gray haired—faced deeply marked, somewhat stoop shouldered, one empty sleeve or one pinned-up, empty trousers leg. Their deeds are already in our school histories.

But there is a new generation of veterans today. Young fellows, nearly every one of them. Not stoop shouldered; very chesty indeed and with good canons. Not yet long enough returned from the battles to have held an annual reunion. But veterans nevertheless. Savors of their country. Saviors of the world.

And there is a still newer generation of veterans coming upon the great world stage. These have not been to war. They may never go to war. And because of them—in part at least—the world itself may never know war again.

These newer veterans are the young fellows who have been five years in the boy scout movement. They are first-class scouts. They have taken upon themselves the scout obligations for life. They have registered with local scout authorities for service to the community in any emergency.

Scouting principles imbedded in a boy's nature will continue to operate in his life whether or not he wears the uniform and the badge. But in order that the movement shall affect the quality of citizenship of the whole nation most effectively, scouting principles should continue to operate through every scout in the active, positive form which the veteran scout embodies in his allegiance.

A SCOUT PARADISE.

I know of a wonderful spot for a camp on the edge of a wilderness. There is a lake there as blue as the sky over you, and as sweet as the wind at your ear. There the red-winged black-bird calls to his mate to bathe in the picket pool. And the herons stand with the blackbirds that grow at the touch of Fair Nature's wand. There the soft breezes whisper the secrets of rest while away on the big lake we play. And the swimming is fine in the summer sunbaths, and at evening the camp-fire glow. There's a jolly old fellow with a jolly old crane—a swing in the old fire-place. And a jolly old cher with a jolly old smile on the front of his jolly old face. There we pitch our tents with a speed that's immense and we smooth out our blankets with delight. In the morning we crawl and sometimes we fall, in the face of the sweet sounds of night. Why not join in our camp as we ramble along, and gather your troop on the way? You will hit up scout's camp when you get near the place, and be ready for work or for play.

Coffee to Relieve Headache.
An ancient remedy for strangulated hernia is black coffee. There seems no scientific explanation for it, but the Medical Record quotes records of three cases relieved after the administration of a cupful of black coffee, with very little sugar, every quarter of an hour. In one case the hernia reduced spontaneously after two cups, another case needed four and the third needed one cupful.

First Post Office in Maine.

In 1775 the first post offices in Maine were established at Kennebunk, Falmouth and Bath. The mails were carried by carriers on foot or on horseback and the average week's mail did not amount to five letters at each office. The rates were high, 64, 124, 184, 25 and 374 cents, according to the distance the letter had to be carried, and double the rate when the letter was one more than one sheet of paper.

FOURTH DIVISION TO SAIL SOON

Old Army of Occupation Ended—First, Second and Third Sails Within Six Weeks—Pershing Says Will Finish Job Over There.

Paris, July 2.—General John J. Pershing officially announced today that the fourth division of the American army will sail for home within a few days. The first, second and third divisions probably will follow within a month or six weeks.

The old army of occupation, as it was originally constituted, ends today.

"We do not want to give the impression that we are going away to leave the job to somebody else," said General Pershing. "Our flag is here, our duty is here and our honor is here. We are not going away until it has been demonstrated to our entire satisfaction that the Germans are living up to the treaty terms."

The American army of occupation will be gradually reduced until the remnants and their auxiliaries approximate a total of 5,000 or 6,000 men.

General Pershing will leave for home in August or September.

General Hunter Liggett, commander of the first army, will be relieved of his command at his own request as he desires to return to the United States soon. He will be replaced by General Harry Allen. It is announced.

General Pershing's headquarters are being removed from Chaumont to Paris.

A further step towards civilian conditions was taken today when the army censorship was lifted.

Paris is now the only port of embarkation for Americans.

Reports that vast stores of war materials were being destroyed by the Americans was denied by General Pershing. He said that nothing of any value had been scrapped.

THOMAS E. O'SHEA,
Corporal, M. G. Co., 107th
Infantry.

Corp. O'Shea was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for conspicuous gallantry in action near Le Cotelet, France, September 29, 1918. Becoming separated from their platoon by smoke barrage, Corp. O'Shea, with two other soldiers, took cover in a shell hole well within the enemy lines. Upon hearing a call for help from an American tank, which had become disabled thirty yards from them, the three soldiers left their shelter and started toward the tank, under heavy fire from German machine guns and trench mortars. In crossing the fire-swept area, Corp. O'Shea was mortally wounded and died of his wounds shortly afterward. He lived in Summit, N. J.

Fourteenth Century Love Token.

The Lincolnsire (Eng.) Architectural and Archaeological society has presented to the Lincoln City and County museum a charming little love token of the time of Edward III or Richard II. The token is circular in shape and about half-an-inch across, and it was originally embellished with six emeralds. One of the emeralds is missing, but with this exception the specimen is perfect. An inscription on the back shows it to be a fourteenth century love token.

Million Dollars of Dempsey Coin Ready at Toledo For Even Money Takers—Willard Says "Don't Want To Hurt the Little Fellow But Will Use Rabbit Punch If Needed."

(By Tad).

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Toledo, O., July 2.—"Some paper had a note in it this morning to the effect that Jack Kearns was afraid that I wouldn't show up on the Fourth," said Jess Willard yesterday afternoon, as he was dressing after his training bout. He had a good laugh, and a long laugh and a hearty one.

"Say," he said, raising his eyebrows and jabbing the writer in the ribs, "the funny part of it all is that I'm wondering whether Kearns and Dempsey will be there. You know I've laughed myself to sleep at night thinking of Kearns' gall. The idea of him even thinking that Dempsey has a chance with me."

"I think it's the biggest set up since Corbett beat McGill. Can't understand why people bet on Dempsey. He's a good little fellow, but gosh!—what chances has he with a big man like me? I'm afraid I might hurt the young fellow. Honest to goodness I am. Why, he's only a little bit bigger than Joe Chip."

The champion then stepped on the scales and tipped "in at 233 pounds. He expects to be at that weight on the 4th."

"Say, how in the world did that story about me doing road work at night get out, anyway?" he continued, as he laced his shoes. "Of all the crazy yarns, ha, ha, ha, ha. Say, I think some of those newspaper writers ought to have their heads examined. Someone starts a crazy story and they go right on and write it up as though it was gospel truth. They did not even ask me if it was true. Huh? Why should I do road work at night? If I wanted to do it, at all I would do it in the day time. I don't need road work and therefore cut it out."

"The rabbit punch? No, that isn't barred. Why should they bar it? I never heard of it being a foul blow. No, I didn't agree that it should be barred. If I feel like using it, I will, but I don't want to hurt that little fellow any more than I have to. That is a tough punch, believe me. Yes, sir; that punch shakes up the old skull."

"Say, I could knock a man out any time I wanted to with that punch—there's no defense for it, you know. The other fellow is absolutely helpless and has to take it on the back of the head."

"Am I going to match for corners on the fourth? Oh, I don't know. It isn't very important. I don't care whether I face the sun or not. I've been boxing in the sun so much lately that it won't matter if I sit facing the sun or have my back to it. Oh, everything is fine here with me. I'm in the shape I wanted to be in. I feel fine and wish that we were to box tomorrow."

Frank Flounoury, who is Tex Rickard's partner in the big show, has asked the local police to help him run down the men who are selling phony tickets to the fight.

Local figure experts say that Willard took in $20,000 or more at his training camp during his training there. He has been working steadily for a month and has on an average of 1,200 people a day, with a mob of four and five thousands on Sundays. At two bits a copy on week days and four bits on Sundays Jess has taken in enough dough to keep him in silk socks for the next 1,000 years.

(By Frank G. Menke)
Toledo, O., July 2.—If you know of any body who wants to wager at even money that Jess Willard triumphs over Jack Dempsey on July 4th, "shoot" him into Toledo. Then you'll be obliging at least one of the several thousand persons who yearn with feverish yearning to plunge on the challenger.

At least $1,000,000 Dempsey money is in cold storage here held for even money. It is the fear of the Dempseyites that unless they offer about 2 to 1 on the "Itab mauler" they won't get even a small portion of it placed. And they are holding off breaking their offerings below even money hoping that late arrivals may bring tons of Willard cash.

The town already is jammed with visitors and every hotel is full to the lobby. But the real influx will not come until the morning of the fight. Meanwhile, Jack Dempsey's letters around his quarters on the shore of Maumee Bay, a bit frosty because he cannot get battle action before Friday, but with confidence in the outlook, growing stronger every hour. And Jess Willard has not varied the routine of nearly a month. He dresses around the shore lobby, amuses, chats, amble and then hikes out to the Casino and hangs away at his favorite pastime.

enjoyed an automobile trip through Hunter and Tamersville last Sunday. Superintendent Wm. O'Connell has an attack of rheumatism. Lewen Scarle has been spending the week end out of town. Mrs. Harry Linton and Jack are at their summer cottage in Peck Hollow.

Atrocious, Indeed.

Mrs. Charles Chapman and daughter, Gertrude, and the Pioneers, Misses of New York City are guests of Mrs. C. Gresh.

Hornbill's Remarkable Nest.

Most wonderful of all is the nest of the hornbill. The hen bird lays her eggs in a hollow in a tree, and as soon as she is settled on them the male bird walls her in with clay, leaving just space for her head to stick out. He feeds her, and there she sits, not only until the eggs are hatched, but until the young are big enough to fly out.

A Question.

Tommy—"Father, isn't the world older than it used to be?" Father—"Certainly it is, my son." Tommy—"Then what do people mean by talking about 'old times'?"

Keeping Older Sweet.

To keep older sweet place in each heart immediately on making acquaintance, four cures: salt, one course, and ground chalk, one course. Shake well. Or older may be preserved sweet by eating in strictest case after the manner of preserving fruit. The liquid should be first settled and washed off from the drink, but fermentation must not be allowed to commence before ceasing or it will not keep.

Nothing New.

"All the world's a stage"—and yet some people look upon the revolving stage as a modern idea.—Boston Transcript.
